IN WHITE AND SILVER.

A Delicate Color Scheme for Dinner Table Decorations. Philaddphia Inquirer.

She was not a rich woman, but, as she was not an advanced one, either, she had plenty of time to think how she would decorate her table at her first "married" dinner party. In the first place, the damask cloth was so white place, the damask cloth was so white and so shimmering that it seemed almost slivery, and that suggested to her a white and sliver decorative scheme. Her white candlesticks had white wax candles stuck in them, and she fashioned some gorgeous white and sliver shades our of the silver paper usually used for wrapping cheap candles, and lace paper. For a centerpiece she had a silvery mirror banked in green moss. On this stood a sliver dish filled with asparagus vine, which had the advantage of being both effective and inexpensive. Long pieces of the same feathery green stuff trailed from the bowl over the white spread to the six places. At each place lay a name card of white written in silver.

SUMMER THINGS MADE OVER, How Piazza Furnishings May Be Utilized in Winter.

The rattan chairs whose summer on on a piazza has given them a sunburned, soiled appearance, may be successfully made over for halls and bedrooms. They should be painted black and varnished. Then gorgeous cushions of redbrown or burnt orange should be fasten-brown or burnt orange should be fastened in and they are converted into things of winter beauty.

When the hammock's out-of-door career, is ever it should find an honored place swung across the corner of a bedroom. It will be quite as inviting and quite as restful as it was beneath the trees or on the piazza.

Now the young woman that has been far-sighted enough to make hay while the sun shiaes is bringing home a piece of fish net for the adorament of her of fish net for the adornment of her den. She will drape it over a door or window and let it fall on one side, and perhaps in its meshes some photograph-ic reminders of the summer will be Veil Elegancies.

What say you to the latest veil fashion? It looks like a pale-brown film, powdered with chenille dots of the same color. Two narrow rows of black velvet, with an edging of black thread volvet, with an edging of black thread lace, form the borde. To buy it readymade you must pay $2 50. Another novel veiling is of white chiffon, edged with fine black lace; also black chiffon with a white border. These veils cost $1 50 cach. Veils of fine black net with white dots and a white-lace applique edge are seen in the shops and are selling well.

They Were Too Inquisitive. One of the handsomest men in the World's Fair is an educated Indian, located over by the anthropological building, who has been acquiring varied experiences with uncivilized persons. To a party of women who were peering into his tent, the other day, while he was dressing, he turned and said in good English: "Ladies, how would you like me to peer into your dressing room while you were arranging your toilet?'
Then they skipped.

To Distinguish Real Lace.

A clear point for women not versed in discriminating imitation from real lace, and the inability is by no means so reprehensible as it once was, is to bear reprenensible as it once was, is to Bear in mind that the meshes of real lace are never so regular as those in the ma-chine woven. All real lace is hand made and it fellows that it is impossible to have it so perfect as that spun by machinery.

A Forerunner of the Overskit.

The double skirt is but the forerunner of the overskirt such as we used to wear. Those that have been seen are of the pointed shawl-like description, and are trimmed about the edges with lace or fringe. This drapery falls over a plain skirt, and the effect in many cases is that of a deep vandyke.

Preserved Peaches.

Pare and halve nice ripe peaches, then make a syrup as follows: Add to two pints of sugar one pint of cold water, and when the sugar is dissolved water, and when the sugar is dissolved set it over a moderate fire. Beat half the white of an egg and add to the sugar before it grows warm. Watch carefully and when it is just ready to run over take it off the fire and pour in a tablespoonful of cold water. After the ebullition ceases put it on the fire again. Repeat this three times, and after the third tablespoonful of water after the third tablespoonful of water is poured in let it settle. Remove the scum and strain the syrup through a jelly bag. It will be as clear as crystal. This rule can, of course, be used in making syrup for any fruit. Now add the peaches to the syrup in the proportion of three-quarters of a pound of fruit to a pound of sugar and boil till soft, which will probably require three-quarters of an hour. quarters of an hour.

To Remove Mildew.

A spoonful of chioride of lime in a quart of water will probably remove mildew from your table linen. Strain the solution after it has stood long enough to thoroughly dissolve and dip the cloth into it. Repeat if a first application is not sufficient, but wash the mixture well out of the goods when your object is accomplished.

To Lace Stays.

To Lace Stays.

A new way to lace stays, if stays must be wern, simplifies, or rather decreases the area of pressure. It is a fashion affected by Russian women, and their quick-witted French sisters have seen its good points and adopted it as well. Three laces are required, with which one proceeds as follows: Take one and begin at the top of the corset, lacing down in the usual way to within two eyelet holes of the waist line; a second lace starts at the bottom of the stays and laces upward, atopping in its turn two holes short of the same line; the third laces through the four holes left, and this is the only string that needs pulling in, the upper and lower laces being left with very slight pressure.

The Sensible Woman.

A sensible woman begins very early in life to show her prevailing characteristic. As a child she can be reastinto obsdience when she canno a coaxed or driven, and, though it would be idle to attach undue importance to the bachelor's opinions, it is wise to remember that wise impulses may be changed to bad ones by improper training.

changed to bad ones by improper training.

The sensible woman does not allow self-gratification to persunde her to do that which is contrary to reason or sound judgment. She never loves a man so dearly, notwithstanding his bad habits, which she despises, that "she cannot give him up." Her good sense tells her that love is short-sighted unless fed on respect, and also that an affection which is weaker than a bad habit is scarcely worth having.

fection which is weaker than a bad habit is scarcely worth having.

The sensible woman never does a thing simply because every one else is doing it, but because she has decided that she may safely do it. She cares just enough about the opinion of her neighbors and none too much.

Cards and Their Use.

Cards and Their Use.

There are iron-clad rules for the use of visiting cards, to violate the least of which argues one's self out of society, which is worse than to be wicked in the estimation of the fashionable world. A written card is infinitely worse than no card at all, and so, indeed, is anything but a dead-white, smooth but unglazed bit of pasteboard, with one's name engraved in ornamental script across its centre. The street and number may be added, if desired, in the lower right hand corner, and one's day for receiving visits in the lower left hand corner. By one's name is meant, for a married woman the full name of her husband, without title or indication of his profession, preceded by Mrs. For the eldest of a family of daughters simply the family name preceded by Miss, while each younger sister has her full name on her card. A widow is allowed to choose between her own and her late husband's name on her visiting card, the latter being considered somewhat preferable for social usage, while her own is invariably signed in matters of business.

Spiced Peaches.

Spiced Peaches.

These are also called "sweet-pickle" peaches. Allow for every pound of peaches—which are better if a little hard—three-quarters of a pound of brown sugar, one tablespoonful of whole cloyes, one-half tablespoonful of mace and a half pint of water. Stick three or four whole cloyes into each peach, then make the sugar into syrup, add the spice, put in the peaches and cook until soft. Remove the peaches, add a pint of vinegar, let the syrup cook ten or fifteen minutes longer and pour over the peaches. Some persons Spiced Peaches. pour over the peaches. Some persons prefer to have them less sweet, and use only half a pound of sugar, which, with the vinegar, is sufficient to keep them. Southern housekeepers always recom-mend the clingstone peach for sweet pickles, as they keep their shape better than the freestones.

Make Your Children Happy.

Make Your Children Happy.

An experienced teacher used to say that he could always tell the children who lived unhappy at home. They were much more troublesome at school, and were almost always on the alert for slights and offenses, and far more difficult to control than the children who came from happy and peaceable families.

Brandy Peaches.

Brandy Peaches.

One peck of peaches, five pounds of sugar, one quart of brandy. Put the peaches into boiling water, let them remain three or four minutes; then take them out and throw into cold water. Wipe the peaches with a coarse towel, rub them smooth; then put them in another vessel of cold water. Make a syrup of the sugar according to receipt given for preserved peaches, put the gyrup of the sugar according to receipt given for preserved peaches, put the peaches into it, and boil until a straw can be run through. Take them out, add the brandy to the syrup and boil for half an hour. Remove from the fire, put the peaches into glass jars and pour the syrup hot over them. They will be ready for use in three months.

A Physician's Advice.

To those who travel, or those who remain at home during the summer, "never be without a stimulant." Its timely use saves the system from many timely use saves the system from many a shock, and as a preventative of discase pure whisky has always been recommended. Max Klein, of Allegheney, is a reliable dealer, who only keeps the purest liquors in stock. His Silver Age, at $1 50; Duquesne, at $1 25, and Bear Creek, at $1 00 per full quart cach, cannot be equaled. CHICAGO, August 30.—Wheat developed a good deal of weakness to-day, cables became ensier, and the offerings were liberal, but with little demand. The probability of delay in the senate in passing the rejeal bill may have had something to do with the weakness, but why it should have that effect in the wheat market and not in stocks is not easily explained. Perhaps a better explanation is to be found in the meagerness and narrowness of trade, the heavings about the expected free movement of new wheat and the appailing falling off of export inquiry. There was more general trading in provisions at the expected free movement of new wheat and the appailing falling off of export inquiry. There was more general trading in provisions to-day than has been observable for many weeks and prices show a good advance. In corn the local trade was inclined to sell, influenced by the receipts over-running the estimates and the action of wheat.

Dry Goods.

Dry Goods.

New York, August 30.—The dry goods market continued about the same as regards demand, but the tone improves more decidedly. Mills are starting up anticipating a resumption of regular trade. It may not be, however, until the silver question is fully settled in Congress, Jobbert are doling more business and the necessities of the moment make up a considerable volume of trade at first bands. The features are in brints and brown cottons. Bleached are also better. Men's wear woolens continue dult. There is a general belief here that the worst is over, but no boom is looked for to follow a restoration of confidence, there have been too many losses for that.
